(The Yes on 4 campaign has purchased air time Wednesday night on California television stations to debut a new 30-second ad, “Sorry to Burst Your Bubble,” which takes direct aim at Planned Parenthood and its so-called “Bubble Ad.” The ad ran during broadcasts of the 90-minute Obama-McCain presidential debate at Hofstra University in Hempstead, New York, which began 6 p.m. Pacific Time.

The new Yes on 4 ad pans into a Planned Parenthood clinic, with floating bubbles that burst as the truth about Planned Parenthood’s failure to report the sexual abuse of a 13-year-old California girl by a 39-year-old man is revealed.)
